About Penn Wissahickon Hospice and The David Bradley Children's Bereavement Program

As one of the oldest hospice agencies in the Philadelphia region, Penn Wissahickon Hospice of Penn Medicine has been serving terminally ill adults and their families for nearly 35 years.

The David Bradley Children's Bereavement Program was one of the first in the Philadelphia area to develop a specific approach to support grieving children. The program encourages a variety of forms of self-expression for children and teens ages 2-18. Services also include education for parents and caregivers to communicate effectively with their children.

About Camp Erin

Camp Erin® is a weekend overnight camp for children who have experienced the loss of a significant person in their life. The Camp provides a safe, fun, and emotionally supportive environment for children to explore their grief and build healthy coping strategies. Staffed by licensed counselors and trained volunteers, Camp Erin combines traditional camp activities with bereavement education and support.

Camp Erin Philadelphia is a partnership between The Moyer Foundation and Penn Wissahickon Hospice.

“Camp Erin made me
ME again.”

Who Can Attend?

The Camp is open to children ages 6-17 who have experienced the death of someone important in their lives. In most cases, we recommend that the child not attend the Camp until at least 6 months after the death. Children from military families are especially encouraged to attend.

Preference is given to new Campers. Returning Camper applications are welcome and will be placed on a waitlist.

What Is The Cost?

Camp Erin Philadelphia is offered free of charge to all campers.

How Do I Apply?

Parents or guardians must complete an application for each child who would like to attend Camp Erin Philadelphia.

Applications are accepted until all available spaces are filled. It is recommended that families apply by March 1, 2017.

Note: This is a recommendation, not an official deadline.

Campers are accepted once applications are reviewed by professional staff and it is determined that our Camp can meet the child's needs.

To apply, visit our website at www.pennmedicine.org/camperin, email us at CampErinPhila@uphs.upenn.edu or call 610-617-2471.
